Mineral Table is the first in a new line of furnishings from ABC Worldwide Stone.

BEYOND THE SURFACE

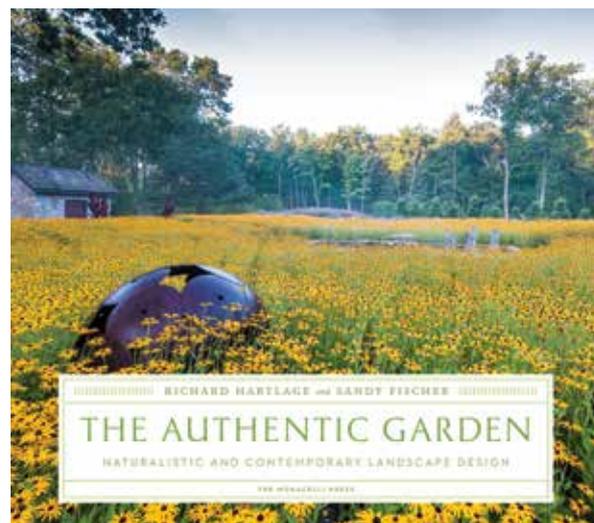

Marble, granite and limestone have been materials of choice for walls, floors and countertops for more than a decade. But thanks to a new program from ABC WORLDWIDE STONE, you'll be seeing more stone in home furnishings applications. For years, the Brooklyn-based firm has been a go-to source for renowned sculptors, as well as top-tier, internationally known architects and designers. Now the firm is taking another step to promote the use of stone as an artistic medium. It's launched a PRODUCT LINE to demonstrate the creative potential of this natural material. The first offering, Mineral Table, is a collaborative effort with celebrated Italian architect and designer Antonio Pio Saracino. Made of the world's purest Blue de Savoie marble, the work will be produced in a limited edition of 12, all individually stamped and numbered. Mineral Table is the first piece in a series of furniture called APS FOR ABC. Saracino is excited to be the first designer to launch the program. "I have challenged ABC with my design, and they have always been able to deliver work that translates my vision exceptionally well," he says. In the past, the artist collaborated with ABC to produce "Hero," a 13-foot statue presented as a gift from Italy to the U.S., which is now on display in Manhattan's Bryant Park. Mineral Table, and others in the new APS line, will be introduced at the White Box Studio, a gallery currently under construction for its public unveiling early next year at the ABC headquarters in Greenpoint, Brooklyn. The collection will include work from other top designers, and introductions will occur at two-month intervals in 2016. abcworldwidestone.com —Judy Ostrow

MOVING PICTURES

WEBER FINE ART gallery is a well-known source for 20th-century Modern Masters and Contemporary art. Patrons include art collectors—private and corporate—and interior designers. Now, Weber is relocating its storefront gallery. After more than five years on the Post Road in Greenwich, the owners are setting up shop at 12 Havemeyer Place. weberfineart.com —Garvin Burke

Richard Hartlage takes readers into some of the most sophisticated gardens in the country

As winter approaches and the gardeners among us put away the trowel and gloves, it's a great time to survey the latest crop of books to prepare for the 2016 growing season. Happily, on this year's fall/winter list of garden offerings is a new release from multiyear A-List Awards judge RICHARD HARTLAGE, who's a principal, along with coauthor Sandy Fischer, of the pair's Seattle-based and nationally acclaimed landscape firm, Land Morphology. The Authentic Garden: Naturalistic and Contemporary Landscape Design (The Monacelli Press, $50) is a celebration of America's best professionally designed gardens, both public and private. This survey of more than sixty gardens includes many never-before-published examples of the work of such renowned designers and firms as Andrea Cochran, Steve Martino, Hoerr Schaudt, Christine Ten Eyck and Thomas Woltz. Organized into thematic chapters that trace the history of various landscape design movements and their current influence, the book shows how today's best garden projects embrace complexity and depth, with an evolved aesthetic that reinforces function, intellectual content, ecological strategies and immersive experiences—all contributing to the emotional appeal of these landscapes. This beautiful and informative volume should be on the short list for any passionate gardener. —Judy Ostrow
